GCUH UPDATE ISSUE #2

Packing up for the big move

Preparation for the move is heating up with specialist hospital removalists appointed and already meeting with individual departments and areas to see what items will need to be moved to Gold Coast University Hospital (GCUH) alongside staff and patients.

Project Manager Shane Wilkinson said that Health Care Relocations (HCR) will bring a wealth of experience to the move to GCUH and ensure a smooth transition to the new facility.

"HCR have significant experience in moving hospitals and other healthcare facilities," he said.

"Everyone can play a role in packing up Gold Coast Hospital ready for the move.

"HCR will complement our move planning and help us to manage the packing and labelling of essential equipment so that we can transfer it across to GCUH easily."

HCR have already assessed Gold Coast Hospital, and will provide specialised moving equipment to each area closer to the move. All moving equipment will be recycled throughout the relocation process so timely unpacking of items at GCUH will be required.

Let's get ready: you can start sorting items and discard redundant items now.

Staff are responsible for packing and unpacking your smaller office contents such as books, desk contents and other items.

Staff will need to take home personal items and bring them back in after the move to GCUH. This includes things like plants, personal files and hanging pictures that you may have brought into work. Neither HCR nor Gold Coast Health can be held liable for any damages or loss that may occur to personal property across the move period.

ICU staff are getting ready for the move.

Remember: tips, tricks and checklists can be found on QHEPS.

Not moving to GCUH? This is a great time to take advantage of the information available to clean up your area in time for spring.
